

Baby Boom

Check out these adorable “East West” gift ideas for the stork’s next visit.

Baby takes a bite out of the Big Apple with this eastern interpretation of the classic “I ♥ New York” T-shirt, $7.50; www.pearlriver.com.

Baby may be too young to eat solid food, but she'll look scrumptious in these adorable outfits that come in clever take-out packing. No tip required! I Love Sushi Gift Set by Best of Chums, www.bestofchums.com for ordering information.

This round changing pad, named after the inventor's children, Patrick and Emma, makes it easy to change even the squirmiest baby. Inside pockets hold supplies. Available in more than a dozen patterns, many of which have Filipino names. Patemm™ pad, $30-$48; www.patemm.com.

Patemm™ pad photos by Naoki Niitta.

Having a baby doesn't have to mean losing your sense of style. Show 'em that you've still got it with this distinctive bag. No one has to know that it's filled with Cheerios and sippy cups. Toddler Tote, www.petuniapicklebottom.com for stores.

Baby likes to be held, but mom needs her hands free. The solution? This traditional-inspired baby carrier, which is hand sewn and embroidered by Miao women in a Chinese village. EllaRoo Chinese Mei Tai baby carrier, $138; www.ellaroo.com.

Play with and massage baby to the sounds of world music with this innovative DVD that makes the ancient Indian practice of baby massage accessible to today's families. Baby Tata, $25; www.babytata.com.

